

Antique Grande is an antique fair with 250 Japan antiques, Western antiques, old fabrics, etc.

In Japan, there is a different system used to count years than the Western calendar. The Japanese system is called Gen-go, and it is based on the reign of Japan's emperors. This year is Reiwa 7, the seventh year of Emperor Naruhito. The era prior to the Reiwa era was the Heisei era, and before Heisei was Shōwa. It has been exactly 100 years since the Shōwa era began.

The Shōwa period was a dizzyingly hectic time. There were peaceful days, but there were also wars, as well as was rapid development.

When Shōwa began, it was a very glamorous, vibrant, and bright timany things were created.

There were beautiful things, gorgeous things, detailed things, and very fun, lazy things.

Yes, they were lazy. In an era without "trademarks", "copyright", and "regulations," people could do whatever they wanted.

That is why they were able to create fun things as they wished.

Please enjoy these Japanese antiques that hearken from the Shōwa era. There will be a small exhibition called "Congratulations Shōwa 100 years" held at a special venue near the entrance of Antique Grande.

Special Exhibits.
